

Field Is Tremendous

So Said Officials Viewing
Prospective Lobster Shipments By Sky Method

James J. Powers, district manager of public relations, and George K. Boardman, traveling commercial agent, Railway Express Agency, Boston, visited Rockland and Rockport Friday and were escorted by the local express agent, Ward E. Stone, in calling on lobster shippers in this area.

A survey of New England lobster shipping points is in progress, looking to post-war development of shipping lobster meat and lobsters by air express.

"The potential field to be developed and the expansion in the area to be serviced by lobster shippers is tremendous," said Mr. Powers, adding, "of course with the complete air facilities being directed in moving important war materials to the west coast, this air express service for the lobster industry must be viewed as a post war venture, but it likely will come at a time when expansion of the present field will be welcomed."

Mr. Boardman and Mr. Powers were most enthusiastic about the progressiveness of the firms contacted here. While air express is now available at Rockland, via Portland and Boston gateways, the future holds great possibilities for a service improved by release of equipment now used for other purposes.

MY! MY! 'S A SMALL WORLD!

See What Captain Dick Reed Says About the "Breed of Men With Winged Feet"

Tinian In The Mariannas, June 27
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:

It is amazing, what a new conception of travel one gets from flying. This war is producing a breed of men for whom the world has shrunk to a weekend trip. Before long you will be hearing a couple of fellows, at Chisholm's fountain, planning a wild bear hunt in the Burma jungles and think no more of it than as though it was a pre-war fishing expedition to Square Lake.

This may seem a little far fetched, but so did the modern automobile in 1918.

Today I received a letter from a soldier friend who is stationed at the Rapid City, N. D., Air Base. He closed with: "Will sign off now as we are about to take off for Paris, France, to check some new navigation instruments."

A few weeks ago, my headquarters was convinced that I rated a short rest leave. The next day I boarded a C-54 transport and flew to Honolulu. After a little golf and what have you, I returned to the job. The short rest leave had required a round trip flight of 8,000 miles. From Rockland that would take you nearly to Rio or Alaska and return. Frankly it didn't seem like much.

When I was stationed in the Palau, it was often that a wire came through for me to report to Guam for a conference. I would board the early morning plane, have lunch and transact my business and be back at my home base for dinner. It was a 1400 mile round trip jaunt.

One day at Geiger Field, Spokane Washington, the commanding officer called me in and said that he wanted me to get the early airliner for Augusta, Maine, the next day. I boarded the plane at 7.30 and before darkness had set in we had crossed Idaho, the high peaks of the Continental Divide, the broad plains and barren buttes of Montana, the lonely farm lands and the badlands of the Dakota, Minnesota with its thousands of lake and on to Chicago. By midnight we were in New York and at 10 o'clock next morning I stepped down to the good earth of Maine at the Augusta Airport. It is significant that while we were covering this great expanse of territory we stopped at air stations every few hundreds of miles.

Leaving Augusta one morning, I made Denver in time for a date with an old girl friend that night, got a midnight plane for Spokane and was back in my barracks before noon.

One of the best eye-openers came in the Fall of 1943 at Spokane. The army required a test of some new type of gasoline and some gadgets on a flying Fortress that called for 20 hours of steady flying. As the flight had to be made, we could see no sense of wasting all that air time without going somewhere so we made a little trip. That day, we flew over Glacier National Park, Yellowstone Park, Great Salt Lake, the Grand Canyon, Death Valley, Yosemite Park, Crater Lake, Mount Hood and Rainier and back to base.

Right now the huge B-29 Super-Forts are taking off from this base with massive bomb loads and flying daily 16-hour 2800-mile round trips to the Jap homeland. From the Palau, B-24 Liberators of a 7th

AAP Group to which I was assigned were doing almost as well.

A group of authors were recently in the Pacific, under the auspices of the War Department Bureau of Public Relations. They flew from Washington to Honolulu, then on to the Mariannas, to Iwo Jima, then to the Philippines and swung back to Oahu via New Guinea, New Caledonia, the Marshalls and the Gilberts. Plot that itinerary on your map. They did not regard the trip as anything out of the ordinary nor did any of us men who are with the Air Forces.

Flying over the vast reaches of the Pacific is very tiresome because there is nothing to see except water, but it is surprising how quickly an island outpost a thousand miles ahead swings into view.

What about this breed of men with winged feet, when they return to their jobs in the factories and on the farms? I am afraid that Main street is going to look mighty short to them. It will take money to fly to Rio for weekends or to London for tea or run down to Sydney for the races, more money than most of us will have.

What kind of a new restlessness will be gnawing away at our souls as we see the big airliners pass overhead on their way to strange lands and gay adventure? Just how much will we pine for another look at the wide spaces of the great West, the steaming islands of the Pacific and the teeming cities of Europe and the Orient?

It seems to me that the post-war days will be restless days for many of us for a long time to come. It will be a sad Saturday night when a fellow can't eat mother's best baked beans because he is thinking of a chill joint in Boise or some New Orleans fried oysters. Folks are going to think G I Joe a funny duck when he wanders off alone from a picnic party on Dixmont Hill and wonders how crowded is the ferryboat across Calcutta Harbor.

This situation is bound to rise after the first thrill of homecoming has worn off. Most of the lads have seen too much, too early in life and too rapidly.

I know darn well it is going to bother me and I have been more or less on the go for 20 years. For the youngsters and the oldsters who are going to go back to dull uninteresting jobs, it is going to be much worse.

[Captain] Dick Reed.

Lt. Gov. Snow's Son Is Highly Praised In A Letter Received From Gen. Kenney

Lt. Governor Wilbert C. Snow of Middletown, Conn., has received the following letter, dated May 27, from Gen. George C. Kenney, headquarters, Allied Air Forces, Southwest Pacific area:

"Recently your son, Lieut. John F. Snow, was decorated with the Air Medal. It was an award made in recognition of courageous service to his combat organization, his fellow airmen, his country, his home and to you.

"He was cited for meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flights in the southwest Pacific area from June 12, 1944 to January 17, 1945.

"Your son took part in sustained operational flight missions during which hostile contact was probable and expected. These flights included dropping supplies and transporting troops over territory that was continually patrolled by enemy fighter aircraft. Often landings were made on fields which were only a few miles from enemy bases. These operations aided considerably in the recent successes in this theatre.

"Almost every hour of every day your son, and the sons of other American fathers, are doing just such things as that here in the southwest Pacific. Theirs is a very real and very tangible contribution to victory and peace."

Are Going To Kick

Sardine Packers Fail To See
Justice In Sardine
Regulations

Maine packers are prepared to fight a new OPA regulation granting them price increases on sardine packs sold to federal procurement agencies but greatly curtailing both prices and number of packs available for civilian customers. They estimated that the "Trojan Horse" regulation would cost them approximately $70 per 100 cases compared with last year.

Asserting that they feel they should get as much in dollar value as they did last year, a spokesman for the industry pointed out that canners can sell only 20 percent of their product to civilian customers at prices averaging $1 a case less than last year. He pointed out also that the pack of Maine sardines available for civilian use would be cut in half.

The regulation raised last year's maximum price of $4.43 a case to the standard government pack to $4.85 for the area west of the Penobscot River and outside of Maine, and to $4.55 for the rest of Maine. It also provides that canners could apply for price adjustments above this figure in order that they might make a profit of 25 cents a case.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed Fred Sproul's farm buildings Thursday night in South Nobleboro, causing a loss of $18,000. The heavens were lighted for miles.

Five heifers perished in the flames. All farm machinery and 12 cords of wood were lost. Most of the household goods were saved.

Waldoboro Fire Department responded to the call, and the forestry department from Jefferson. The only water available was from two wells on the premises.

Mr. Sproul and son, Howard had been attending an Odd Fellows meeting in Waldoboro and found the barn in flames when they arrived home. Mrs. Sproul was asleep in the house.

City Council Met

Highland and Camden Street
Schools To Remain Closed
Another Year

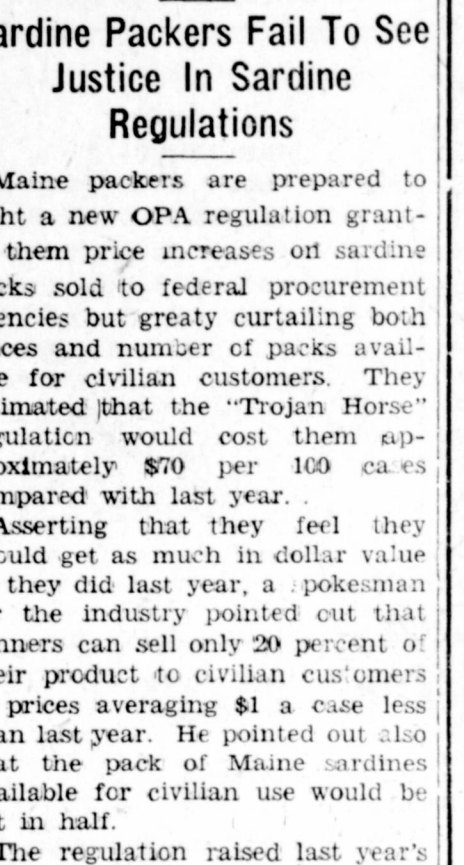

The schools at The Highlands and on Camden street will remain closed another year, in accordance with vote of the City Council last night, following a request from Supt. Lunt. No opposition was voiced by citizens.

Alderman Ralph L. Wiggin, reporting on the proposed purchase of additional land at the Benner Hill School, said that inasmuch as the title was not clear, more time would be needed before definite action could be taken.

There was considerable discussion concerning the razing of the remains of the David Rubinstein building at 579-585 Main street, and it was finally voted that the building inspector inform Mr. Rubinstein that he must remove the unsightly and unsafe remains of the building, which was the scene of a fire several months ago. Alderman Wiggin said that Mr. Rubinstein had told him that he would remove it just as soon as he could, giving as reason for delay, the rush of summer business and shortage of labor.

WAS THAT SOMEBODY YOU

Somebody did a golden deed,
Proving himself a friend in need;
Somebody sang a cheerful song
Brightening the sky the whole day long—

Was that somebody you
Willingly said, "I'm glad to give,"
Somebody fought a valiant fight,
Bravely he lived to shield the right—

Was that somebody you
Somebody made a loving gift,
Cheerfully tried a load to lift,
Somebody told the love of Christ,
Told how His will was sacrificed—

Was that somebody you
Somebody filled the days with light,
Constantly chased away the night,
Somebody's work bore joy and peace,
Surely is life shall never cease—

Was that somebody you?

Book Review

K. S. F.

"Courage Has Eyes," by Trumbull Reed. Published by Westminster Press, Philadelphia, Pa.

You will be happily satisfied with this sequel to Trumbull Reed's more than popular "Bright Midnight," and the follow-up of its character Sam Day whose blindness gave to him the high courage that fascinated all of the many readers, and thus this writer gave us the story "Courage Has Eyes." The seeing-eye dog plays a valiant part in this very human story.

There is a remarkably fine school at Berkeley, California, where this author first glimpsed the possibilities of a blind subject for book interest.

This sequel to "Bright Midnight" is worthy of deep thought and proper sympathy for this sad handicap. A good tale for thoughtful enjoyment.

[EDITORIAL]

MERCHANT MARINE CLAIMS

The Gallup poll is not lax about investigating matters in which there is a general public interest. Recently it has sought the opinion of the people as to the inclusion of members of the U. S. Merchant Marine under the G. I. Bill of Rights—as supported by the head of the U. S. Maritime Commission, Admiral Emory S. Land. Readers of The Courier-Gazette have seen a liberal discussion of this proposition in its columns within recent months, and they will now be interested to learn that 69 percent of those interested by the American Institute of Public Opinion endorse an extension of the G. I. Bill to include all men in the Merchant Marine; 33 percent voted "no," and 7 percent was "undecided."

FIGHTING THE FOOD PROGRAM

On the occasion of his appearance before the Republican State Committee last Friday National Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., declared that National Government has bungled the food problem "in a big way," a statement which will receive a hearty "amen" from most readers. "The Republicans," Brownell said, "had offered an alternative to the New Deal bumbling, but this was rejected." This leaves the Republicans nothing to do but carry on the food problem battle. Brownell was outspoken in his criticism of excessive expenditures which, he said, will lead to "financial instability."

"BOYS WILL BE BOYS"

Men under 30, interviewed by the American Institute of Public Opinion, as to whether American soldiers should be permitted to fraternize with German girls, allowed that it was O. K. by them, but the feminine sex failed to approve the idea of having the American boys fall for girls in foreign lands. But regardless of what we may think here in America it's quite likely that nature will take its course and that if some winsome German lass attempts to console some lonesome "Joe" she will not be rebuffed.

GARDEN PROSPECTS VARY

With the return of typical Summer weather we are now in a position to take account of stock on crop conditions. The fruit situation, especially apples, is far from encouraging. That fruit is going to be very scarce, with prices adjusted to the supply. Some of the vegetable gardens, located in favored spots, show seasonal progress, but thousands of acres, ordinarily devoted to garden crops, have not been planted at all, while many are so far behind schedule that one is left to wonder what will happen if they are overtaken by early frosts.

SEVEN POSTS CHANGE HANDS

The turnover in Washington officialdom is making up for lost time. The normal rate had been slowed down by President Roosevelt's long tenure and by war demands. But, with Secretary Morgenthau's resignation, seven out of ten Cabinet posts will have changed hands in the last six months. Mr. Truman is well on his way toward having a Truman Cabinet. Mr. Morgenthau bore the Roosevelt stamp in a special sense—being the former President's personal friend and Hyde Park neighbor. His tax programs have carried little weight in Congress, but that is not necessarily a black mark. He has been an efficient and conscientious public servant, handling the vastest war financing task ever undertaken. When the President named Fred M. Vinson to take over the Treasury post he again carried forward his policy of choosing men who can work well with Congress. Mr. Vinson has a wealth of experience in government finance. Recently Economic Stabilization and then War Mobilization Director, he had previously held the key taxation chairmanship in the House for many years.

The resignation of Owen J. Roberts from the Supreme Court, announced at the same time, opens the way for the first Truman appointment to the High Court. In the last few years Mr. Roberts has been the most conservative judge remaining on that bench, but his replacement will hardly give the Court a more definitely liberal cast. Mr. Justice Roberts is the most distinguished figure in the World Federation movement, and might now lend his support more actively to its campaign for world government. We trust that the President, in seeking a successor, will not only give the West more representation on the Supreme Court, but will add a man with judicial experience rather than a politician or professor.—Christian Science Monitor.

Union Will Miss Him

The late Fred E. Burkett of Union

Fred E. Burkett, who served in both branches of the Maine Legislature, and whose long life was actively devoted to public and business affairs in his home town of Union, died Sunday night. The funeral services will be held at his late residence Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in the Union cemetery.

There is a certain young fellow (no name mentioned) at the North End who is headed for trouble—serious trouble. They tell about thieves stealing roast chicken from lunch baskets, and flowers from graves, but there is no meaner thief than the man who plays around with a soldier's wife—while that soldier is fighting overseas. The girl's husband is one of my buddies and one well fellow, and true blue to that wife he trusted and went overseas to fight for.

The fellow in question is probably a 4-F. I want to know why the people of Rockland stand for such things. Why don't they do something about it? Why don't the police break up such love affairs?

Now I want to know which is the meanest, the wife who will draw army allotment and two-time her soldier or the man who is mean enough to help her two-time the soldier who is fighting his battles while he rides around in a nice car. Through friends I hear he has the car on the road nearly all the time with the girl at the wheel, or himself.

I would like this letter published so they may know how the other soldiers feel about such things as two-timing a service man. My buddy is due home soon. What will he do?

An Angry Soldier and His Wife.

Citric Acid

Citric acid, commonly used as a flavoring material in soda pop and various foodstuffs, can be made by using molds to ferment beet molasses, under a process devised at the University of Wisconsin by Dr. Gerhardt, I. L. Baldwin and Wayne Umbreit. In the past, such fermentations have been successful only on pure sugar. The research workers are convinced that if it proves feasible to use the new process commercially, it should be a factor in conserving sugar.

They report that the process of converting beet molasses into citric acid is fairly efficient when carefully conducted. It is necessary to use a selected strain of Aspergillus niger mold. Results are best when the medium has a neutral reaction, contains 15 per cent sugar and is kept at a temperature of 86 degrees Fahrenheit. The investigators found that cane molasses, unlike beet molasses, could not be successfully converted into citric acid by the new method.

Alumni Meeting
Union Church vestry was the scene of a happy gathering Wednesday night when 145 alumni of Vinalhaven High School sat down to a bountiful turkey dinner. Before being seated, President Andy Gilchrist asked the members to sing "America," salute the flag, and then give one moment of silence in remembrance of all absent members.

This was followed by the invocation by Rev. Charles Mitchell.

After the banquet Vera Johnson of the Remembrance Committee was asked to take charge of the presentation of the corsages to graduates of classes before and including that of 1895. She invited Everett Libby class of 1914, to present a corsage to his mother Lillian Libby, class of 1899. Vaughn Johnson presented a similar token to Mrs. Annie Headley, a member of his mother's class of 1891. Charles Bowman, class of 1893 received his remembrance with amusing remarks from Vera Johnson, while he in turn pinned a corsage on his classmate Eva Noyes Sullivan.

Dora Bowman and Emma Winslow of the class of 1895, now graduated fifty years, received their flowers from Edward Greenleaf Jr. of the baby class of 1945.

Alumni regretted that Mr. and Mrs. Mark Smith could not be present as honorary guests. Mrs. Smith's diligent work did much to make the Vinalhaven young people "music minded" while she lived in town. It had been planned to surprise her with a gift from the old orchestra members as a token of their appreciation. However because of her inability to attend, the gift and a bouquet were taken to her home before the meeting.

Several songs were sung by the alumni. Every one seemed so full of music that when the pianist, Leola Smith, ran out of accompaniments, the singing went on just the same.

President Gilchrist then called the business meeting. Officers for 1946 are: President, Emma Winslow; vice president, Vera Johnson; treasurer, Leon Sanborn; secretary, Frances Gilchrist; and executive members, Doris Arey, Andy Gilchrist and Erdine Chilles.

These new officers were asked to report at the next meeting on the advisability of establishing Life Memberships.

Letters were read from the following absent members by Secretary Lida Ames; Edith Erickson, Lt. Kay Rosen, Steve Small, Louis Smith, Sgt. Woodrow Bunker, Bertha Raymond, Lt. Calvin Vinal and Rev. J. Harold Gould.

Jesse Bradstreet of the Class of 1906 gave a very interesting talk, using the story, "The Key Flower," as his theme.

In closing a few tactful and amusing words of advice from the President to the class of 1945 were read. The meeting then adjourned with the members feeling they had once again enjoyed the fellowship of friends and classmates.

Much credit is due Union Church Circle for preparing such a delectable dinner. Many words of praise are being said of Mrs. John Wentworth and her assistants.

Following the banquet, the Alumni Ball was held in Town hall with large attendance. Music by Arey's orchestra.

LaFrance-Wood
Miss Minnie Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Lin Wood of Quincy, Mass., and formerly of Vinalhaven, was united in marriage June 30 to George LaFrance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur LaFrance of Springfield, Mass. The marriage took place at Union Church parsonage.

INTIMATE VIEWS OF VINALHAVEN

History, Home Life and Personal Recollections

By SIDNEY L. WINSLOW

Before continuing with the facts and figures concerning Vinalhaven's fish industry, past and present, I would like to tell you about an adventure that befell one of our local fishermen many years ago and which I am copying verbatim from the "Vinalhaven Wind" of Feb. 23, 1934, under the title of "Run Down On Brown's Banks."

In introduction: There are several men in our community whose escape from a watery grave have been almost miraculous; and as they are men of integrity and are known to our readers, there is always a crowd of willing listeners whenever they can be induced to relate their experiences on the beach from the steamer swung near me and I grabbed it, and after a hard struggle managed to get aboard the steamer, almost exhausted.

The man I saw falling had climbed into the rigging but in some way fell off and was afterward picked up by the steamer's life-boat.

One of the most remarkable things about it is that neither of the men on watch sounded any alarm, at least I did not hear any, and both of them perished.

The steamer that ran us down was named the Bosphorus bound from Queenstown to Boston.

As I had nothing but underclothing the captain gave me some clothes. Capt. Henry Rich, who was a passenger, gave me a hat. Arriving in Boston we were presented with $100 each.

Five of our crew were saved, two of whom got aboard the steamer from the masthead of our vessel just as she was sinking, the other two being picked up in the water by a lifeboat.

The names of the six drowned were Capt. Winslow R. Hopkins, John Lindsey, James Colby, Peter Walsh, William Parkhurst, and John Kent.

The whole scene of the disaster was of but several minutes duration but short as it was, no change in life can ever banish it from my memory.

Rev. Charles S. Mitchell performing the single ring service. The bride wore a printed silk gown with tulle train and a corsage.

She was attended by Mrs. Walter Lyford as matron of honor, who wore a light blue gown with corsage of tulle train. The groom's best man was Mr. Lyford.

The bride is a graduate of Vinalhaven High School, class of '29.

The groom attended Boston Schools and has employment with the Russell Engineering Co., Boston. While in town the newly-weds were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Dunlap.

They left Saturday for Quincy, Mass., accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lyford, who were returning to Worcester, Mass.

Headley-Dewar
Miss Dorothy Dewar, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James M. Dewar of East Orange, N. J., was married Saturday at 4:30 o'clock to Joseph Frederic Headley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Headley.

The ceremony took place in the Friendship Room of the Presbyterian Church in East Orange, Rev. C. M. Muir officiating. The attendants were Mrs. Alexander B. Dewar of East Orange, sister-in-law of the bride and Parker Williams of Portland, Me., brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Mr. Dewar gave the bride in marriage.

After a wedding trip the couple will make their home here.

Gyro-Magnetic Compass Developed for Small Vessels

NEW SPERRY GYRO-MAGNETIC COMPASS shown in above photo is an experimental model with gyro unit in foreground and repeater compass mounted on top. When installed aboard ship, repeater compass is placed in location most convenient for steering. Shown in rear is magnetic compass unit which can be remotely located at place on vessel where it will be subject to a minimum of interference from metals, electrical currents, etc.

FOR the first time in the history of navigation the masters of small craft — seagoing tugs, tow boats, yachts, fishing craft and ferry boats — may now get as steady a compass reading as the navigator of an ocean liner. This has been made possible by a new instrument, the Sperry Gyro-Magnetic Compass, which was announced today as a recent development by engineers of the Sperry Gyroscope Company.

Occupying no more space than a small radio and weighing but 122 pounds, the new Sperry Compass is put forth as a solution to the long-standing problem of small boats which need indications of greater accuracy than are provided by the conventional magnetic compass but have neither the roominess nor weight allotment for even the smallest Gyro-Compass.

In operation, the Sperry Gyro-Magnetic Compass provides for gyro-averaged magnetic compass indications which are transmitted to a conveniently located compass repeater. Two repeaters may be used in cases where more than one direction indication is desired.

The magnetic compass unit of the system has been designed as a separate component in order to make possible its location at any spot aboard the vessel where deviation difficulties may be reduced to a minimum. The effects of steel construction, magnetic materials in the cargo, and other conditions that result in inaccurate and erratic magnetic compass readings may thus be reduced or completely overcome.

Through the operation of the gyro unit, the reading on the Sperry Gyro-Magnetic Compass remains steady no matter how violently the vessel may roll, pitch, or yaw.

The amount of power required to operate this new compass is no greater than that called for to produce light in an average size light bulb, and in addition to providing steady direction indications, the equipment may also be used to provide automatic steering.

This And That

Letter from a son in a Jap prison camp: "Remember the time, Mother, you asked me to learn the 91st Psalm? I got more courage in that than any other. You read it, and think of me."

The president of Colby has said: "Every serious person today is swept with a passion for human betterment, and we shall never again be satisfied with any message of salvation which postpones the new conditions of peace and happiness to a post mortem realm beyond the confusions and tragedies of this life. But important as the social gospel is, it is not good enough if it is only a new economic theory or a re-shuffling of the same old human atoms. Ministry will continue to be genuine good news only if it knows how to reveal a power which works a new creation in the soul of man and renews him from inside out with vital contact with God." Excellent in thought.

What's this? what's this? World shortage in meats and sugar to last for four years. Think of that! four years. This is a headline printed in a Maine newspaper, just under these big words comes another squelcher: "War may end in 90 days or may last years." The 90 days is based on the hope that Japan may surrender and thus end the slaughter.

Maine persons were recently attracted to the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston by a costume display from many nations, and covering many years.

Small children in our streets use profane language so frequently it is a shock to decent minded persons. They scorn to use the mild expletives of former years but use oaths with Divine name. Whose fault is this, mothers, fathers, teachers, ministers, or what? Mostly mothers have the guidance of children's minds along these lines. Let us hope for better training from all sources.

Our flower gardens are bursting with joyous glory of beauty these days of sunshine.

To Music O music come and light my heart's dark places Arouse to life my spirit's inmost ear, Awake in me such love no time effaces, O voice divine, speak on and I shall hear. O music make me strong to conquer sorrow. My soul with love of noble things fulfill. Then fear I not the silence of death's morrow. For Death himself my music shall not still.

"Let's see," said the chatty man, "your brother went abroad on a fellowship, didn't he?" "No," was the reply. "It was a catchship."—Pathfinder.

Dignity consists not in possessing honors, but in the consciousness that we deserve them.—Aristotle.

A girl filling out a form before entering college, came to this question: "What is your denominational preference?" She wrote, "I like to be called Sarah."

Every man used to feel he was not properly equipped for the day without a jackknife in his trousers pocket. Is that the case today?

As you are undoubtedly aware, a change in Civil Aeronautics Administration procedure, which became effective June 1, provides that an applicant for a private pilot's certificate shall be given the physical examination by any registered physician. In an effort to contribute to the general desire for simplification of the physical examination, the National Aeronautic Association in April of this year, on its own responsibility, asked a committee of noted doctors, chairmanned by Dr. Moses Paulson, of the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, to formulate a set of simple questions based on the pertinent sections of Part 29 of Civil Air Regulations.

Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt seems to get into all sorts of difficulties; not alone with his wives, but in the business world. Our high up men in our Army seldom have this kind of notoriety.

From the Bangor Daily News: Food—For Thought Governmental language is always obscure—perhaps with intent. But these new meat and meat-coupon regulations are stygian. They seem to come to this: Heretofore, nobody was entitled to any meat and didn't get it. Now everybody will be entitled to more meat, but there isn't any.

Gardens of perennial flowering are at their height in June and July.

Story Of Noah Emery

Descendants of Whom Are Numbered Among the Residents of Owl's Head

Had time rolled back the curtain of obscurity that dims the future, Noah Emery would have seen a long line of Emerys marching across the pages of American History. "Men of Dartmouth" the college in which he had a personal interest, men from Bowdoin, Harvard, Amherst, many of our national institutions of learning are represented.

The legal profession heads the cavalcade. In the van are Associate Justice Nicholas Emery of the Supreme Court of Maine, and Judge Augustus Lord Soule of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. There are ministers, led by Rev. John Abbott Emery of California and his brother, Rev. William Stanley Emery of New Hampshire. There are doctors, Dr. Nicholas Emery Soule of Ohio and Dr. William Caldwell Stevens of Worcester, Mass.

Let us look at those who will carry the name of Emery to the far corners of the globe. John Emery, Noah Emery's first born, dying at sea in 1787; Noah Emery's second son, Noah, Jr., master of the schooner Hope in 1805, of the brig Republican in 1807; of the ship William in 1808! His grandson, another Noah, master of the ship Endeavor, dying at Archangel in Russia! Nicholas Emery, dying in Calcutta.

Capt. Robert Emery, a shipmaster at 20. His son, Captain Charles Emery, another shipmaster at 20, making voyages around Cape Horn to the West Indies, going to China and South America, carrying the United States flag where it had never been before, up the Amazon River, into the heart of the rubber country.

We find descendants of Noah Emery fighting to preserve the Union, led by Nicholas Emery of the 25th Maine Infantry. Editors, legislators, teachers, scientists! They are crowding too fast to distinguish them all.

"I wonder who will be selected as the ruler of these motherless colonies? George Washington, probably. A man, modest but able. How significant his action when nominated as commander-in-chief of our Army! Cousin Josiah Bartlett told me that John Adams, after setting forth the high qualities necessary for him, who was to lead us in battle, concluded by nominating one of their own body, the Second Continental Congress, one in whom they were all combined, George Washington of Virginia, for that important post.

Amid the stunned surprise of the entire assembly, none more so than himself, George Washington immediately rose and silently walked from the room! The next day they unanimously elected George Washington Commander-in-Chief of our Army! The whole country will do as they did, unanimously elect George Washington! When the Declaration was adopted, Philadelphia went mad and Washington himself caused our troops to be paraded and the Declaration read to each brigade.

This steamer sailed Penobscot's waters for three decades. Can you name her? A large percentage of the readers of this article have enjoyed her speed and comfort. Two excellent authorities state exactly opposite beliefs as to the whereabouts of this fine ship today. Can any reader say definitely where she plies today or if she is afloat?

In Friday's issue the two large steamers were City of Rockland and City of Bangor. The smaller boat was Silver Star. The central picture showed the present Belfast wharf and the smaller dock was at Northport, now largely disintegrated. Photo courtesy Republican Journal.

A Honolulu Letter

Tells Of Stirring Times In Capital of the Hawaiian Islands

(Extracts from letter written by Miss Marion Norton, formerly of Rockland to Miss Mary Hall of Spruce Head.)

"I still do the Red Cross Volunteer Canteen Service out at Hickam Field. We went out then to attend the opening of the large new building in which our new headquarters will be located. We felt so big with our invitation from the General of the Pacific Command.

"It was just like a pre-war celebration—band speakers, much gold braid, etc. We had a chance to go on board a luxury plane, hospital ship, and a baggage plane. We were thrilled.

Then there were oodles of food—hors d'oeuvres, sandwiches galore, whole roast turkeys and liquor flowing freely.

"For the last two weeks there has been no meat in the markets of any kind, as it is being shipped right through here. We can get along very well but it is hard on Pookie (her cat).

"There were huge platters of roast beef sandwiches, so Bernie and I each had two, but we ate only the bread for I put the meat in my purse! Pookie enjoyed it very much. Last Sunday we served in the Red Cross Canteen. It was the first time in the new buildings. It certainly is a fine setup. We saw several hospital planes come in. (It always kills me in the stomach to see them. You know, for all day and all night for weeks after Iwo Jima, those planes came flying in with the wounded). We also saw an Australian plane with the Australian members of Parliament. All had a cup of coffee but I bet they would have loved a cup of tea. A United States Colonel introduced us as representatives of our American Red Cross. We felt so puffed up.

"We shall have to move soon as President Fox is anxious to have a chaplain. Heaven knows when we will find a roof but I have faith."

"The Nortons have been living in the Punahou chapel house, on the campus since they left the house on Mt. Tautilus. For, on the day after Dec. 7, the United States engineers seized Punahou. It seemed a shame to use the lovely buildings, costing $150,000 for spades and shovels. Then the government had to pay $24,000 rent per year, and Punahou was out a school.

For the last three years, classes have been held in garages up in the hills, and churches.

Then Punahou bought three large estates with houses which they used for classes. Now after almost four years, the United States Engineers are giving back Punahou.

Staying away so long has been a deprivation for the pupils and teachers, but they were glad to sacrifice something to push the war to its conclusion. The campus has been ideal working headquarters for an organization of 50,000 men, spread out over the whole Pacific area, building fortifications, gun emplacements, pill boxes, storage tunnels, barracks and other vital installations for the millions of our fighting men, on the bloody road to Tokyo. They are proud now to have helped—just by getting out of the way; but they are surely happy to be going back once more to their own.

Punahou School, formerly Oahu College, is the oldest and largest private preparatory school west of the Mississippi. It was graduating classes when the 49ers were making their way across the prairies. Early settlers on the West Coast sent their children to Oahu College, rather than have them make the lengthy journey around the Horn.

Someone has estimated that the 17,000 to one, male-female ratio on Oahu is going to drop. For 6000 more WAVES are expected. Along with the 150 SPARS, 250 WACS, 1500 Women Marines and the thousands of nurses there are quite a few women in uniform in Honolulu.

The Navy nurses on the job since "Pearl Harbor" at Aiea Hospital, the largest in the Pacific, are doing a wonderful piece of work. There are 300 nurses for 6000 beds (an extra 1000 beds after Iwo Jima).

The hospital is built up high in the green hills. It is an enormous building with several levels and very modern. The boys come in direct from the front line by plane and ship. Of the thousands who have come in recently there have been only one death at Aiea. When casualties pile in every one works, no matter how exhausted, 72 hour shifts sometimes. In fact all women in Hawaii, in and out of the service are working like mad doing their bit.

Embryo Barber Shops

Two Knox County Liberated War Prisoners Needed Haircuts

With the Fifteenth United States Army in Germany—There were 9000 Russians, Nazi prisoners of war or slave laborers until liberated in the Allied drive across Germany, and every one of the 9000 needed a haircut. But that was only one of the problems which faced battle-trained men of the 583d Field Artillery Battalion as they took over four allied Displaced Person Centers in Lieutenant Gen. Leonard T. Gerow's Fifteenth Army military government area in Germany.

And that one was solved in a few days—the artillerymen found enough barbers, some skilled and some embryo, among the 9000 Russians to set up 47 barber shops in the one camp, and soon everyone was sporting a G.I.-type haircut, short, hygienic and requiring a minimum of attention. Whether the G. I. style will be permanently adopted by the Russians is not yet definite.

Regulations require, of course, that every incoming displaced person produce some sort of identification as a legitimate ward of the Allies. The best identification, everyone agrees, came from one middle-aged man who, when challenged, dug deep into a worn wallet and came out with his identification, written in German longhand. An interpreter took one look and read out loud: "This pass allows the bearer to pass over this bridge with his bicycle. Dated: March 28, 1941."

Members of the 583d's A, B and C Batteries include:

Corp. Albert M. Thompson of 196 South Main street, Rockland; and Pfc. Alton D. Rogers of Owl's Head.
